I. In brief

I.1. Training and University teaching. Born in 1964 in Pavia, where he obtained his high school diploma at the Liceo Classico “Ugo Foscolo” in 1982, G. graduated in Political Science at the Faculty “Cesare Alfieri” in Florence in 1989. After gaining a Doctorate (PhD) in the History of International Relations in 1994, he was Associate and then Full Professor of that discipline at the University of Urbino (1998-2004). Later he moved to Florence, where he taught until 2017, holding also a Jean Monnet Chair in the History of European Unification co-financed by the European Commission, as previously in Urbino. On 1 September 2017, he began to work at the University of Siena where he chaired the Steering Committee of the Laurea Magistrale (Master’s Degree) in International Sciences until December 2024.

I.2. Publications. After his first short essays on Italian anti-fascism (“Giustizia e Libertà” a Pavia negli anni trenta, 1983) and British decolonisation in Africa (L’indipendenza del Ghana, 1991) G. has written books on Spain’s neutrality in the Second World War (Madrid e l’arte della diplomazia, Madrid and the Art of Diplomacy, 1995), the attitude of the United States of America towards European integration in the 1960s (Interesse nazionale e responsabilità globale, National Interest and Global Responsibility, 2000) and US relations with Latin America in the Carter years (Ordine mondiale e buon vicinato, World Order and Good Neighbor Policy, 2012). He has co-edited interdisciplinary volumes on raw materials and the international system (Diplomazia delle risorse, Resources Diplomacy, 2004; Russian ed., Diplomatija resursov, 2008), EEC/EU enlargement (2004: l’allargamento dell’Unione europea, 2004: The Enlargement of the European Union, 2005), Spain in the last years of the Franco regime (L’ultimo franchismo, The Final Phase of Francoism, 2009), the international system in 1975-85 (The Globalization of the Cold War, 2010), EEC/EU “foreign policies” (The External Relations of the European Union, 2015), current issues in international history (Nuove questioni di Storia delle relazioni internazionali. Studi in onore di Ennio Di Nolfo, New Issues in History of International Relations. Essays in Honour of Ennio Di Nolfo, 2015), the euro (A Monetary Hope for Europe, 2016) and the beginning of Donald Trump’s second US presidency (Il mondo al tempo del secondo Trump: memoria, incertezza, speranza, 2025: The World and Trump II: Memory, Uncertainty, Hope). On these subjects, he has also written articles, essays and book reviews in Italian, English, French and Spanish. He is currently working on US foreign policy, European and Transatlantic integration, Spanish, Latin American and Italian issues.

II. Academic positions

Financial grants of the Italian Ministry of University and Research and the Universities of Urbino “Carlo Bo”, Florence and Siena to carry out local, national and international research and teaching programmes (1998-2023).

IV. Specific expertise

IV.1. Project management and international activities. G. has co-ordinated many projects in his academic life, ranging from local and national research programmes to international research and teaching programmes, including the Jean Monnet Action (two Chairs, a Module, a Centre of Excellence), Tempus (several projects), Socrates (several projects) and the Seventh Framework Programme (one project, local research unit). In 2008-17, in particular, he was Co-ordinator at the University of Florence of two pilot projects for an international joint PhD course in History of international relations (Peking University, Peking) and for an international joint Master's Degree in International Studies (MGIMO University of the Russian Foreign Ministry, Moscow); Co-ordinator of a Master Course in ‘Diplomatic and International Careers’, co-promoted by the Italian Foreign Ministry; Co-ordinator of a Tempus project fostering institutional and administrative development in Serbia; Co-ordinator of academic exchange with many universities and research institutions in Europe and the world, among which the London School of Economics, the Sorbonne, the Max-Planck-Institut, the Complutense, the Jagellonian, the East China Normal in Shanghai, the Sogang in Korea, the Monash in Melbourne, the Fundação

Getúlio Vargas, Toronto University, and a number of universities in the United States of America, including a special agreement for PhD mobility with the National Security Archive at George Washington University and the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars, Washington, D.C.

IV.2. Project and curricula evaluation. Frequently involved in peer-reviewing processes, G. has served many times in Brussels as an independent expert for the European Commission (Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Framework Programmes) and the EACEA – Education, Audiovisual and Cultural Executive Agency (Erasmus+ and Jean Monnet Actions). He has also served as an independent evaluator for the Belgian FRS-FNRS (Fund for Scientific Research), the French RBUCE-UP (Research Based University Chairs of Excellence – Universities of Paris), the Danish AIAS (Aarhus Institute of Advanced Studies – Aarhus Universitet), the Polish NAWA (Narodowa Agencja Wymiany Akademickiej – National Agency for Academic Exchange), the Italian National Agency for the Evaluation of Universities and Research Institutes (ANVUR) and the Italian Ministry of University and Research. He frequently serves as an expert or peer reviewer on panels of several Italian and international scientific journals, and as a member of Italian and international academic committees for the awarding of professorships, research and teaching positions, and postdoctoral, PhD, master's and bachelor's degrees.

IV.3. Policy-relevant reports and activities. Given his past academic training and enduring interest in multi-disciplinary studies combining historical and social science methodologies, among other activities G. published two reports (2010) on international multi-stakeholder partnerships for reconciliation, peacebuilding, empowerment of vulnerable people and human security in post-conflict contexts (Afghanistan and the Democratic Republic of Congo) for the “Multipart” project, co-financed by the European Commission within the Seventh Framework Programme (Theme 8, “Socio-Economic Sciences and Humanities”), in which he led the Florence University team and chaired a round table in Kabul. He also was the contract person for a Tempus IV programme co-financed by the European Commission and co-ordinated by the Universities of Florence and Beograd, “Development of Public Administration and Management Studies in Serbia” (2008-13).

V. Skills

V.1. Foreign languages and travel. G. can read, speak and understand a number of languages – Italian (mother tongue), English and Spanish (very good), French and Portuguese (good), German (fair), Esperanto and Russian (sufficient), Arabic, Chinese and Greek (elementary), Hebrew, Hindi and Swahili (basic notions). He also has a very good knowledge of two ancient languages – Greek and Latin – and introductory notions of Sanskrit. Since the 1980s he has travelled throughout Europe and to many regions in all the other continents, as a free-lance journalist and tour operator in his youth, later on as an academic for research, conferences on invitation, promotion of networking and international exchange on behalf of the Universities of Urbino, Florence and Siena, the European Commission, the Italian Foreign Ministry and the Italian Ministry of University and Research.

V.2. Computer and other skills. G. has wide-ranging computer and artificial intelligence skills. He has been actively involved in youth associations in the 1970s and 1980s and in European unification movements thereafter. Since 2020, he has joined the Italian Red Cross as a volunteer rescuer, with skills ranging from general health and safety to adult and pediatric emergency rescue, from social inclusion projects to international co-operation activities. He plays sports with a penchant for sea and mountain disciplines. He plays folk and blues guitar and harmonica, and can accompany songs from the Italian folk repertoire on piano and accordion.
